COLLEGE CAMPUS SUPPORT PROGRAMS

Network of services and support designed specifically to support formerly incarcerated students.

These campus groups offer things like:

- Support with your admissions packet and gathering the things you need to apply to that school.
- Help filling out financial aid applications like the FAFSA.
- A social network of students and faculty who understand many of the experiences and concerns that system impacted students have in going to college, and who want you to succeed.
- A campus liaison between the school and the program, meaning someone employed by the school whose job it is to be a point of communication between the administration and formerly incarcerated students. Sometimes these programs have their own funds to help with the costs of books, transportation, and food.
